

NCTSN Website

Learn:

- Find current information about child trauma types
- Search trauma-informed resources
- Download over 200 Network products
- Access the Military Families Knowledge Bank
- View child trauma information en Español

www.NCTSN.org

NCTSN

The National Child
Traumatic Stress Network

The NCTSN is a unique, collaborative network that brings together leading experts in child trauma, frontline providers, and families to advance the quality of care and move scientific gains quickly into practice.

NCTSN Knowledge Bank

Explore:

- Locate child trauma resources
- Search Network people and programs
- Conduct literature searches
- Browse by subject, language, audience, and format

<http://kb.NCTSN.org>

The nation's source for up-to-date and science-based information on child and adolescent trauma. Visit www.NCITSN.org for current information for families, professionals, researchers, policy makers, the media, and anyone concerned about child trauma.

Our mission is to raise the standard of care and improve access to services for traumatized children, their families, and communities throughout the United States.

The NCITSN Knowledge Bank is a collaborative tool and showcase for Network expertise.

This web-based resource speeds access to the products, projects, and extensive knowledge of the Network. Revisit often for new developments and updated materials.

The NCITSN is supported by a grant from the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration.